

Rocky and Rusty

Bye, Rocky.

Ann, close the door to the living room so that Rocky can't get out.

All right.

Bye-bye, and be a good boy, Rocky.

Hi, Rocky. I'm great, thanks. But I'm really hungry.

Hi, Rusty. Come in. You alright?

I can make us some ham and eggs.

Can you get me some more eggs, Rusty?

Here you are.

Ah, that was good. Let's watch TV now.

Great idea, Rusty. Come with me.

It's so boring.

Yes, I know. Let's go to the bedroom. Let's have a pillow fight.

Oh, what fun!

Hey, let's got to the attic. We can play 'Hide and seek' there.

Seven... eight... nine... ten. Ready or not, here I come.

Atishoo!

Got you!

Listen! Oh no, they're coming home. You must go now.

Bye-bye.

I can't believe it. There's a mess in the kitchen, the bedroom and the attic!

I don't understand.

How strange. Was there a burglar?

No, there's nothing missing. Ah, there are tracks. Look.

I don't understand. Maybe the door was open.

Yeah, tracks of a big dog. How did the dog get into the house?

Good boy. You're the best.

Good boy, Rocky. Yes, let's tidy up.
